Services des Marchés de Capitaux (CMS)

Une société doit détenir un permis de services des marchés de capitaux (SMC) pour exercer des activités réglementées en vertu de la Loi sur les valeurs mobilières et les contrats à terme. Les personnes représentant des titulaires de licence CMS ou des institutions financières exemptées doivent être nommées à titre de représentants.

Les sociétés qui peuvent être tenues de détenir une licence CMS comprennent les courtiers, les conseillers en financement d'entreprise, les agences de notation de crédit, les gestionnaires de fiducies de placement immobilier, les gestionnaires de fonds et les opérateurs de financement participatif basé sur des valeurs mobilières (SCF). Vous pouvez cliquer sur chaque type d'entité pour obtenir plus d'informations sur ce qu'elles font et sur les différentes exemptions de licence disponibles pour les différentes activités réglementées.
